The Bethel Fire Department offers the service of inspecting stove installations and chimneys and urges anyone who would like an inspection or who has questions to contact Chief Robert Davis, Asst. Inspections are done without charge and all interested citizens are urged to take advantage of this important safety check.

APPALACHIAN TRAIL MAP ON DISPLAY AT STATE LIBRARY

A 50 foot map depicting the 276 mile Appalachian Trail in Maine is on display through September at the Maine State Library in Augusta.

The map was originally prepared by the Maine Land Use Regulation Commission (LURC) for use at the meeting of the Appalachian Trail Conference at Carrabassett Valley, Aug. 10-13. It is designed to show the environment of the trail and LURC Guidance Districts which are highlighted with captions and photographs.

According to information provided by LURC, those familiar with the Appalachian Trail in Maine tend to divide it into three sections; the Hill Country, a 114 mile mountainous stretch extending from the New Hampshire boundary to a point just east of Bigelow; the Swamplands, 54 miles of marshy areas between Bigelow and Monson; and the Lake Country, a region of numerous lakes and ponds lying along 108 miles of the trail between Monson and Mount Katahdin.

CHILD PEDESTRIAN SAFETY
EMPHASIZED BY STATE POLICE
AS SCHOOLS RE-OPEN

With the reopening of schools for the fall term, the Maine State Police emphasize the importance of child pedestrian safety.

"When it comes to youngsters along the roadway, each of us should accept the fact that we must be our 'brother's keeper,'" said Colonel Allan H. Weeks, Chief of the Maine State Police.

Children in general, by their very nature, sometimes are excitable and careless at the beginning of a new school year, he said.

"Although we adults are aware of this," Col. Weeks said, "many of us seem, at times to expect these young folks to have mature judgment and a thorough knowledge of speed and stopping distances."

The Maine State Police Chief said that when a child sometimes forgets to be careful, it can lead to danger especially if a motorist fails to use extra caution around where a child may be.

"As responsible adults and as parents, our teaching and our example in traffic or along roadways are important and this importance cannot be over emphasized since our responsibility is keeping children safe from vehicle accidents," said Col. Weeks.

STATE POLICE URGE CAUTION LABOR DAY WEEK END

The Labor Day week end, the Maine State Police will have all available personnel on patrol in an effort for motorists to end a pleasant summer with a safe driving experience.

"We ask each motorist to join with us in Operation CARE, a cooperative accident reduction effort, as the inevitable heavy flow of traffic on all our roads will be a warning to each driver to remain alert behind the wheel," said Commissioner Arthur A. Stillephen of the Maine Department of Public Safety.

Troopers will be especially patrolling along routes bearing heavy traffic concentrations so as to be accessible to motorists seeking aid or information. In addition, motorists are reminded aircraft and radar-equipped marked and unmarked cruisers are being used for enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit on the Maine Turnpike and Interstate System, along with the enforcement of posted speed limits on selected secondary roads.

Stillephen said drivers should take note that the three top contributors to fatal road crashes this year have been liquor, speeding and driver inattention—with alcohol being the most significant factor.

Northwest Bethel

— Clarice Gibson, Corres. —

Labor Day is now behind us and we had three lovely days. Frank, Ira and I went to Rangeley Saturday through Upton and Errol, N. H. We were surprised to see hardly any Canadians on the road. Going up we met quite a few motorcycles. Usually these were traveling with more than one and several times four motorcycles would be together. These do save a lot on gasoline; but before long it will be too cold to ride them for enjoyment.

Doug Smith was home from Cape Cod, Mass., for the long week end. He will now be living in South Paris and working at Oxford Subaru.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy had Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bolowski and Melissa of Gorham, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Bolowski from Bunley, N. J., as Monday guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hebert and Kevin brought home Jody Shimamura from Hartford, Conn., Saturday. Kevin stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shimamura and his parents stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aylward until they went back Monday. Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aylward had for supper Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hebert, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shimamura, Billy and Thelma Merrill. The Shimamuras had a yard sale Monday at their place on Vernon St.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Stearns and two children, went to Abbott's Anchorage for a picnic and swimming, Monday.

Matthew and Christopher Laban came 'into Portland with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Casey, from Reading, Mass. Their mother, Sue Laban and sister Amy went to Portland to meet them. They all had lunch at Dunfeys.

Roberta Saunders brought her brother, Richard Saunders, back from his visit to New York. Thursday, and Monday Roberta and Robert Saunders headed back to New York. Later in the week Roberta will be taking Robert to Johnson Wales College in Rhode Island. While home Roberta was in the wedding party of her friend Robin Osgood.

Jody Shimamura and Kevin Hebert went to a horse show at Fred Warren's farm with Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Seames and two children. Dawn Seames led their pony, Frankie, in grooming dress. The Seames' horses, Oakie and Swirl, were ridden at different times by Carol and Melinda Mason, Jody Shimamura and Sheri Harmon of Hiram. Between the riders Swirl got two 3rd place and two 4th place. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason, Carol, Melinda and Sheri also went to the horse show. Melinda got champion of the day and Carol got three 1sts, one 2nd, and one 4th, with their 21 year old Smokey.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Blake of Augusta and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harom of Hiram, met the Mason's and all had a picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shimamura also went to the horse show.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benson went to West Sumner to visit Frank Benson's friend and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Litchfield.

Danny Gibbs has put new sills under Frank Benson's porch and also worked on the porch itself.

Sylvia Benson, Maude Hunt and Joan Coolidge went to Gorham, N. H., Tuesday and had lunch while there.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Coolidge and two girls and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Inman and two children went camping at Wyman's Camping Area at Head's Beach, near Small Point, Saturday to Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Angevine went Saturday and came back Sunday from the same camping area. They all got together for a lobster and steak feed Sunday.

Betty Blake, Alberta Angevine, Bunny Brown and Todd of Strong and Mrs. Barbara Boudo and two children picked up Grammie, Mrs. Rena Abbott in Dixfield and went to a picnic at the farm.

Bob and Barbara Boudo and two children left for their home in Cape Cod Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Angevine and two children from West Stewartstown, N. H., visited his nephew and family, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Angevine Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Chris Angevine and two children were also Sunday callers.

Karen Brooks was a Monday guest of Sheri Angevine. Tuesday Karen Brooks and Mary MacKay visited Sheri.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Anderson went to Lancaster, N. H., fair on Sunday.

Ruth Butters was in the hospital Wednesday to Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Tappin and two children of Manchester, N. H., came Friday and left Sunday afternoon. Also Sunday visitors were Marion Rogers, Lovell and Olive Blaisdell of Somerville, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden MacDougall had as Sunday afternoon guests, her nephew and family, Mr. and Mrs. Shawn Keenan and two boys of Brunswick. Mr. and Mrs. Meard of Rumford were also Sunday callers and stayed for supper.

Another busy week: Mom and Dad, Mr. and Mrs. George Allen, came for dinner Wednesday. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aylward came for supper. Frankie III, Grace, Karen and Tinker came for an evening visit. Alberta Angevine came up Friday and we had a cup of coffee. In the evening we rode down to Norway, Saturday Ira, Frank and I went to Rangeley. Right before we left our son James, from Old Town, who was 24 that day, called us and told us he was getting married that afternoon. Frank III and Grace Gibson, Karen and Tinker, were also in Rangeley and we all spent the night at Eddie and Roberta Peavey's camp. Grammie Gibson was also in Rangeley.

Frank III and family left after breakfast and we left soon after dinner. Before we came home however, Eddie, Roberta and Ira went for a ride in a private seaplane.

Soon after we got home our son George, called from Norfolk, Va., telling us he is leaving Friday for a six months Mediterranean cruise. They will be docking in Spain; but were not sure what other countries.

Monday, Frank III, spent with us and my nephew and family. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tucker III and Ben II came for supper and evening.

Today, Tuesday, our son, Wilfred, called from South Carolina. He said that they could not leave their building because of hurricane David and Monday night they had to stay put. Got to close now as it is news time and want to know how and where hurricane David is.

Ricky Seames and two children rode in their pony cart and Debbie rode on their horse, Oakie, this week end. They went to Shimamura's and back as far as Coolidges. This is one way to beat the gas shortage.

Hills
So blue my hills, so misty blue,
So tender sweet the skies above,
So old my hills, so ever new,
So rich with life this land I love.
Here on its warm breast, let me lie.

Where distant heaven bends close by—
Here on my everlasting hills!

HOMEOWNERS CAUTIONED

ON METAL CHIMNEY USAGE

Homeowners are urged to exercise extreme care and caution when planning to use factory-built metal chimneys with newly installed air-tight wood stoves.

"It is strongly recommended that people who use pre-fabricated metal chimneys with an air-tight wood burning stove be aware of the unusual creosote buildup which results when using these appliances; and when this buildup ignites, the chimney may become severely over heated and damaged and may result in a structural fire," said State Fire Marshal Donald M. Bisset, of the Department of Public Safety.

According to Bisset, "When the accumulation eventually ignites, the resulting temperature often exceeds the temperature for which the chimney was designed, with a fire likely result."

With concern about the price and availability of heating oil in the colder months, the Maine home without some type of wood heat will be the exception; thus the State Fire Marshal is concerned about the safety of the individuals who may be lax in maintaining their pre-fabricated metal chimneys, or who may be contemplating use of one for the use of a wood burning device.

Individuals using air-tight wood burning stoves connected to pre-fabricated metal chimneys are advised to "follow closely the stove manufacturer's operating instructions that allow for full fire burning for at least 20 to 30 minutes daily, permitting the chimney to warm up sufficiently to reduce creosote accumulation."

ated at the Southern Maine Vocational Institute in South Portland, shows that factory built chimneys are not always satisfactory, even if listed by Underwriters Laboratories, when attached to air-tight wood burning appliances," said the State Fire Marshal.

Testing of factory built metal chimneys, monitored by the Energy Testing Lab Director, Carl R. Plink, indicates a chimney fire can reach 2130° in the metal pipe; however, at approximately 1800° the No. 430 stainless steel (currently UL listed) appears to start its breakdown, and the main weak point of the pipe is at the seam.

"The reason for the UL listing of the pre-fabricated all fuel metal chimneys is because they were tested with oil and gas and not with wood," said Plink.

Although metal chimneys are not prohibited at this time for use with air-tight wood stoves, the State Oil Burner's Licensing Board is not approving the installation of factory built metal chimneys for use with wood or wood/oil burning central heating furnaces or boilers.

However, the State Fire Marshal said in nearly all mobile homes manufactured metal chimneys are used and may be connected to wood burning stoves which are designed for installation specifically in mobile homes and are approved for connection to these metal chimneys.

ESTIMATED TAX INSTALLMENT FOR CORPORATIONS DUE SOON

Corporations having tax liabilities of at least $40 for 1979 and operating on a calendar year tax basis must make a payment of 1979 estimated tax by Monday, Sept. 17, according to J. J. Jennings, District Director of IRS in Maine.

The amount of the payment can be computed on Form 1120-W, a worksheet for computing corporation estimated tax. This form should not be filed with IRS but be retained with the Corporation's records.

When the payments are deposited in authorized commercial banks or Federal Reserve Banks, they must be accompanied by Federal Tax Deposit Form 503, Director Jennings said.

Supplies of Form 1120-W and a helpful pamphlet, IRS Publication 542, "Corporations and the Federal Income Tax," are available free of charge by calling the IRS Forms number (toll free) 1-800-225-0733.

SENATOR WILLIAM COHEN From Washington

As Congress returns from its August recess, it is faced with new evidence of the country's continuing economic problems.

Government figures for July show inflation growing as fast as ever. According to the latest statistics, prices jumped another 1% in July, which means that they are now increasing at an annual rate of 13.1%. The July price jump came despite a decline in food prices and was due principally to soaring energy and housing costs.

As if the inflation news were not bad enough, unemployment is beginning to rise again as the country slips toward a recession. The jobless rate for July was 5.6% nationally, but it has already reached 6.8% in Maine. And indications are that it will climb higher in the months ahead.

Economists have had to coin a new word—"stagflation"—to describe our current economic dilemma. The term is applied to a period of inflation accompanied by high unemployment and low growth of productivity. Simplistic solutions for inflation have failed in the past precisely because they have fostered unemployment. The real challenge facing America today is to find a way to stop inflation without incurring the terrible waste and injustice of a prolonged, severe recession.

The Congressional Budget Office, which now predicts a mild recession in 1980 with a limited recovery by the end of the year, has pegged the current economic slowdown to a number of causes. First among them are repeated increases in the price of oil imported from OPEC nations. Higher oil prices are expected to reduce American's disposable income by 1% in 1980. This may not sound like much, but it is the equivalent of a more than $20-billion increase in personal income taxes. In addition, economic activity has been discouraged by record high mortgage interest rates, which has depressed the housing industry, and reduced demand for larger automobiles and trucks, which has hurt

SOCIAL DRINKERS MAY NOT REALIZE HOW MUCH "UNDER THE INFLUENCE" THEY ARE

— Mrs. Linda Fraser, Corres. —

Sobriety, reaction response and depth perception tests recently done by the Maine State Police indicate the social drinker does not realize how much under the influence he or she actually may be.

"In an effort to bring to the public an increased awareness of the problems of the social drinker—the person who may consume four or five drinks or a six-pack of beer during an evening, Troopers monitored a controlled program that included the participation of two Bangor radio personalities," said Colonel Allan H. Weeks, Chief of the Maine State Police.

Weeks said Lieutenant Ralph Folsom, commander of Troop E (Orono), coordinated the four-hour program that began at 5:30 p. m. when WGUY's Lee Shannon was given mixed drinks at timed intervals, and Don Patrick was given beer. Consumption ceased at 8:45 p. m. and final tests were done at 9:30 p. m.

On sobriety, the self-contained breath testing device indicated both individuals were at .08% Blood Alcohol Concentration (BAC). Although Maine law is 10% BAC, the State law does allow that persons having BACs of .06% to .09% may be convicted of OUI (Operating Under the Influence) when the BAC is taken into consideration with other evidence.

On reaction response, the test reaction time increased as the individuals used the brake pedal unit (in which the person takes his/her foot from the gas pedal to the brake pedal on a given light signal). A normal response time of .43 and .44 of a second, increased to .65 and .70 respectively. Since a vehicle travels 80.85 feet per second at 55 mph, the announcers' delayed reaction time would have caused the vehicle to travel approximately 23 feet further.

The reaction time would have been even greater in a normal driving situation where the motorist would not have been anticipating, as in the test situation, the call for sudden action," said Lieut. Folsom.

In regard to vision, the State Division of Motor Vehicles had an eye test machine and an examiner to monitor the WGUY announcers' vision. At the start, Shannon's and Patrick's vision was 20/17 and 20/40 (normal); at the end, it was 20/40 and 20/42 (worse) respectively.

Also, their wide side or peripheral vision was reduced as the drinking increased to a point that would be equal to wearing a set of blinders, Folsom said.

In addition, depth perception that was fair to start with, later was almost totally gone. In other words, neither announcer could judge the depth of oncoming vehicles.

"The point to remember is that these two men reacted as the typical social drinker would in these tests. Mildly affected by what they had to drink, they were not aware of their deteriorating driving skill. If they were to operate a motor vehicle in their condition, they would be a menace to the traveling public — and to themselves," said Folsom.

our massive automotive industry. There are steps that can be taken to curb inflation. I, for one, believe that the Administration and the Congress should move boldly to do the following:

—Reduce government spending.

—Eliminate unnecessary, costly government regulations.

—Move toward a balanced federal budget.

—Reduce the size of the federal debt, currently about $890 BILLION.

—Develop a comprehensive energy policy to reduce our dependence on imported oil.

—Pursue a restrained monetary policy.

—Actively enforce existing anti-trust laws to foster greater competition.

—Roll back scheduled increases in Social Security payroll taxes.

—Promote greater capital investment and savings by providing tax incentives, such as the legislation I have proposed to exempt from income taxes the first $150 of an individual's interest earnings from savings accounts each year.

—Explore ways to boost productivity, which many economists see as the key to controlling inflation.

—Work to eliminate waste of tax dollars which the General Accounting Office estimates may be as high as $25 billion annually.

There is no greater challenge to America today than the energy and economic challenge. It is a difficult situation, but not a hopeless one. Finding the proper solution—and implementing it—will require strong leadership in Washington and the dedication and persistence of every American citizen.

Sunday River

— Mrs. R. M. Fleet, Corres. —

Sent in by Eva Yates:

Monday has gone by and today is Tuesday. Monday we had a few showers but not bad and it was a busy day. Some were busy with work, and some with play. As for yours truly—it was both work and play. After the work and myself began the week by going to Franklin Grange where we each held office.

Darnita Yates and friend, John W., called on her grandmother Eva and Uncle Joe Monday.

Julie and Sharon Daye were in Portland working for M. D. patients. Julie sure does a good job and helps a lot.

The exchange students arrived Aug. 28 for a stay in Maine of a year. Hope they are happy.

Peggy Blake, Russell and Eva Yates were dinner guests of the Bernard Hutchings Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Adams and baby, Robbie, were there too.

Monday, Aug. 27, Russell Yates was in Norway on business.

Vivia Whitman and Jennie Blodgett called on Peggy Blake then had supper with Russell and Eva.

Saturday night Russell and Eva Yates and Peggy Blake went to Rumford Grange and held offices.

Bear River Grange #285 will have installation of officers, Sept. 8, at their hall, with Cousin Chester Hayes of Winthrop Grange in New Hampshire doing the usual good work.

I think by the horn blowing, tin cans rattling, etc., either a wedding or maybe just a reception was held up river on Saturday p. m. Maybe it was Eddie Kennett. If it was — our best to you, Eddie — joy and happiness for years to come.

Robert Bates was showing his horse off to the neighbors a little Sunday p. m. It's a beauty. Hope next time he will come up to my door. I'd love to lay my hand on a horse once more.

Bear River Grange was well pleased with the results of their supper at the Trappers Convention and I am sorry I did not mention the help we had from Verna Swan. Although not one of our members she was right there until the last job was done and she worked hard. Thank you so much Verna. We all love ya!

WORRY OR PRAY?

"Worry? Why worry? What can worry do?"

It never keeps a trouble from overtaking you.

It gives you indigestion, and wakeful hours at night.

And fills with gloom the days, however fair and bright.

It puts a frown upon the face, and sharpness in the tone.

We're unfit to live with others, and unfit to live alone.

Worry, Why worry? What can worry do?

It never keeps a trouble from overtaking you.

Pray? Why pray? What can praying do?

Praying really changes things, arranges life anew.

It's good for your digestion, gives peaceful sleep at night.

And fills the grayest, gloomiest day with rays of glowing light.

It puts a smile upon your face, the love note in your tone.

Makes you fit to live with others, and fit to live alone.

Pray? Why pray? What can praying do?

It brings God down from Heaven, to live and work with you."

PROJECT '79 "WRAP UP"—MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY

Labor Day afternoon was filled with happy faces when Bethel area cartoon characters dressed as Minnie and Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Yosemite Sam, Bulwinkle, Shaggy D. A. and Goofy greeted the crowd at WGAN TV studio at Northport Plaza, Portland.

Kenny Lee Holmes, State of Maine Poster Child, drew the winning ticket for the 42" sheeb dog. The first name chosen was Lina Reynolds of Lake Wales, Fla., mother of the project's sponsor.

Without hesitation, a second name was drawn, proclaiming the winner as Bill Gallant, 47 Kerr St., Rumford (Ticket #65). A check in the amount of $617.26 was presented to the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

WALKING WITH JESUS CHRIST September the Golden Month

Labor Day passes, vacationers and loved ones wave goodbye—warm memories linger even as tears well in our eyes.

Love is a wonderful thing. We're alone again and our thoughts center upon God's love so abundantly bestowed—evening draws near and we feel an even greater closeness to Him—our hearts fill with an inexpressible joy—we're glad that an inexpressible joy—His invitation to become His child and He forgave us the foolishness of the past.

On that day we were "born again," John 3:3, and we experienced a new life—a life in Christ, we became as it says in 2 Cor. 5:17—"a new creature; old things are become new."

"For we walk in the light, as He is in the light, and we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ His Son—cleanseth us from all sin," 1 John 1:7. We've saved! His Word were baptised—Acts 2:41—in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

This sequence of Biblical events—hearing the word, believing and then being baptised—the Greek text indicates by water immersion—is the pattern as shown in the Book of Acts. Baptism is a symbolic act, portraying the putting off of the old and the putting on of the new life in Christ—it is a token of a regenerated soul's union with Christ.

Letters to the Editor
Sept. 4, 1979
To the Editor:
Last week saw the end of "Gas Reports" at least for this summer. They were started by the Chamber of Commerce at the request of NTEL and continued as a community service when the gas situation was uncertain. Later the program was widened by the Maine Publicity Bureau to cover the whole state.
We wish to thank the gas station owners for their cooperation and for the Citizen's publishing the reports each week we are also grateful. Not every locality, it is our observation, was so cooperative as the Bethel area. Therefore, the part played by all concerned here in reporting the information is even more appreciated by us.
Sincerely,

The Labor Day week end brought its usual heavy traffic, tourists and part-time residents, together and residents on vacation elsewhere. Monday night most of this activity had ceased.

Fred Judkins and Marion went to the air show in Brunswick Saturday. Because of the heavy traffic in the first leg of the return journey, the pace was at less than jogging speed, and they arrived home too late for the church meeting.

The Blais family and the Viena family visited relatives in Canada during the week end.

The Berniers enjoyed two grand-

"ENERGY CRUNCH" MEETING
IN PORTLAND SEPT. 15
"Living with the Energy Crunch" is the title of a conference on Saturday, Sept. 15, beginning at 9 a. m. at Portland Regional Vocational Technical Center at 196 Allen Avenue. This free workshop is sponsored by Cumberland County Extension Groups and the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Maine at Orono.

To register for this conference, telephone 780-4205 or write to Cumberland County Extension Office, 96 Falmouth Street, Portland, Maine 04103. Child care is also available with pre-registration.

Learn how to do your own energy audit to determine your personal energy needs for home heating, transportation and home appliances. This first topic of the day will be presented by Charles Kittridge, Extension Specialist in Agricultural Engineering.

Next at 10:45, conference participants will have a choice of learning about window treatments or caulk and weather stripping. Rae Konio, Extension Human Development Specialist will show different techniques for window treatments (shutters and blankets) and designs and construction details for the do-it-yourself.

Caulk and weatherstripping offer big savings at low cost. These are usually given highest priority in reducing fuel cost. Kittridge is the speaker.

Beginning at 11:30 a. m., participants will learn how their oil burner works and what it needs for service to operate more efficiently. John Hill from Petroline Engineering in Natick, Mass. is the speaker for this.

Home appliances, including water heaters, will be discussed by Mary Kozlar, home economist at Bonny Eagle High School. Learn how to save power costs by the way you use appliances.

Participants are asked to provide their own lunches between 12:15 and 1 p. m.

Energy alternatives will be discussed at 1:00 by Richard Hill, Professor at UMO. This program will provide a look at the potential of various energy sources such as solar, wind, coal, nuclear, alcohol, methane gas, etc., and how they will fit into our future lifestyle.

Following this at 2:30 there will be a presentation on wood stoves and their safety by Art Bannister, a local wood stove dealer. At 2:30 also, Energy and You will be discussed by Nellie Gushee, Extension Human Development Specialist. This will examine life style changes which can reduce our energy demands.

Bring your wife or husband or a friend and learn together, so you can set priorities and together commit yourselves to live with the energy crunch a little easier.

"ENERGY CRUNCH" MEETING
IN PORTLAND SEPT. 15
"Living with the Energy Crunch" is the title of a conference on Saturday, Sept. 15, beginning at 9 a. m. at Portland Regional Vocational Technical Center at 196 Allen Avenue. This free workshop is sponsored by Cumberland County Extension Groups and the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Maine at Orono.

To register for this conference, telephone 780-4205 or write to Cumberland County Extension Office, 96 Falmouth Street, Portland, Maine 04103. Child care is also available with pre-registration.

Learn how to do your own energy audit to determine your personal energy needs for home heating, transportation and home appliances. This first topic of the day will be presented by Charles Kittridge, Extension Specialist in Agricultural Engineering.

Next at 10:45, conference participants will have a choice of learning about window treatments or caulk and weather stripping. Rae Konio, Extension Human Development Specialist will show different techniques for window treatments (shutters and blankets) and designs and construction details for the do-it-yourself.

Caulk and weatherstripping offer big savings at low cost. These are usually given highest priority in reducing fuel cost. Kittridge is the speaker.

Beginning at 11:30 a. m., participants will learn how their oil burner works and what it needs for service to operate more efficiently. John Hill from Petroline Engineering in Natick, Mass. is the speaker for this.

Home appliances, including water heaters, will be discussed by Mary Kozlar, home economist at Bonny Eagle High School. Learn how to save power costs by the way you use appliances.

Participants are asked to provide their own lunches between 12:15 and 1 p. m.

Energy alternatives will be discussed at 1:00 by Richard Hill, Professor at UMO. This program will provide a look at the potential of various energy sources such as solar, wind, coal, nuclear, alcohol, methane gas, etc., and how they will fit into our future lifestyle.

Following this at 2:30 there will be a presentation on wood stoves and their safety by Art Bannister, a local wood stove dealer. At 2:30 also, Energy and You will be discussed by Nellie Gushee, Extension Human Development Specialist. This will examine life style changes which can reduce our energy demands.

Bring your wife or husband or a friend and learn together, so you can set priorities and together commit yourselves to live with the energy crunch a little easier.

University of Maine at Orono health center administrators believe that today's students are healthier than ever. This doesn't make a place like the Cutler Health Center on the Orono campus obsolete, however. UMO health officials are spending more time in preventative medicine than ever before. Part of the program involves visits by students to dorms and fraternity housing to provide free blood pressure tests, distribute educational literature and spread the word about the special services available for those with health problems.

MIDDLE INTERVALE MEETING HOUSE PEW SALE

I, Marjorie MacArthur Noll, dedicate pew number 30 in the Middle Intervale Meeting House, Bethel, Maine, to the loving memory of my sister, Leanna Harriett MacArthur Coons.

Harriett was an active member of the Congregational Church in Bloomfield, Connecticut. She was an accomplished pianist, and loved the beautiful flower gardens at her home. She was a friend to everyone, a devoted wife to her husband Paul and a wonderful and loving Mother to her three adopted children.

Harriett was an inspiration to me, always thoughtful and understanding. She was there when I needed her most, in my time of anxiety and loss.

She joined the "flowers 'O the forest", September, 1978.

We dedicate pew #31 in the Middle Intervale Meeting House to the two men in our lives who could very easily have changed roles as father and father-in-law, without changing the amount of love and respect we felt for each. Sherman Willard Eddy (1876-1952) and Arthur Harold Eaton (1878-1953) were alike in many ways, were good friends, and after retirement for a brief period were in a business enterprise together. They were both from families of seven children, both Congregationalists, both loved nature and the warmth of small-town friendships. Both would have been content in the Middle Intervale of Bethel, and the area would have been the richer for their presence.

Pew #2 has been purchased by Francis, Chester and Walter Osgood, Dorothy Bennett, George Brown, Florence Aubin and Marion Kimball in memory of their parents: Beatrice Brown and Francis Llewellyn Osgood and the Osgood family. Many people came up to this back hill country of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to escape the rigid class structure of the old world and make a new beginning. This family had already established themselves in the new world. Samuel Osgood was the Postmaster General of the United States in 1789. They settled on Farwell Mt. and lived as they pleased, not caring what their conventional neighbors in the valley thought of them. Most of the houses on the mountain were low Cape Cod structures but their house was a full two story white colonial. They must have loved flowers and tended them well as some still bloom around the old cellar hole. They had family portraits and fine china. Hazen Osgood had been a ship's carpenter; he made ship's knees and sent them down to Portland by ox team. He was known as an extremely strict and stern man. An old story (maybe not true) is that his sons, when they were older, tied him onto a wagon from which the shafts had been removed and sent him down the road. He escaped without even a scratch. He had four sons. Salathiel known as "Slate" who married and had two children, Florence and Francis Llewellyn. Slate made excellent violins and played but not to the pleasure of his little dog Toodaloo. George never married and was the cook of the household. The neighborhood children went up the hill when possible in the hopes of being invited to supper. He was famous for his hot biscuits and a dessert made of apples in a steamer and served with a sweet white sauce. Enoch, when young, went off to Bingham, maybe to lead a more conventional life. Henry Melvin, known as "Mit" lived for some time on the Brown place, higher up the mountain from the home place. He always drove his horse at a breakneck pace on the dead run without a stop all the way to Middle Intervale. Wife Nancy (his fourth) arrived complaining bitterly of being spattered with mud. The horses lives were necessarily short but the neighbors usually helped procure another one for him because he was always willing to work at the less desirable chores.

There was one daughter, Eliza, and maybe another. Mary Jane Capen always told the story of remembering when she was a little girl, of seeing go by the fanciest carriage and the most dashing team of horses ever seen on the road. It went up the Osgood road and went away the next day. The reports were that they came to carry away a beautiful girl named Georgiana and bring her up in the city. Was she a twin to George? What become of her no one knows. Some say she went away in the carriage. Some say that Hazen would not let her go. No one asked any direct questions. It is still a mystery. The graves are not marked.

The descendants of the family today are not so flamboyant, but industrious citizens.

in memory of the children of Ella Clough and Timothy Cullen Carter. She writes of Middle Intervale. "Some of my happiest memories as a child are of the summers I spent on the farm when Aunt Grace lived in the old family house (Brick End). I think I spent as much time in Cousin Fanny Ned's house with Paul, as I did in the big house. What wonderful meals she served; and she was always so cheerful and good to me. I remember how patient Gus was when he used to let me ride on the wagon when he hauled in wood. . . . sitting out in the yard and trying to draw a picture of the big barn and the stable. . . . What a wonderful time Paul and I used to have taking a picnic lunch to the sand pasture. . . . what a pest I was because I always wanted to ride Bobby. What a smart pony he was when he didn't want to be caught. Paul used to put a lasso rope on the ground with a piece of cake in the middle, in hopes he would put one foot inside the loop. I have a picture of Paul and me sitting on the driving gig with Bobby hitched to it. . . . Such happy memories. . . ."

Pew #9 has been purchased by Florence B. and Philip Lawson Carter in memory of his grandparents, parents and aunts. Phil was born in the old house by the brook (now Wilsons). He was a daredevil little boy and frightened the neighborhood by climbing the rickety old ladders in the dark and walking around on top of the cupola.

Grandmother was Carrie Clough C. who died when quite young, as did her daughter Helen, from what was called in those days "consumption." She wrote home interesting letters about her trip south, a cure that did not succeed. Grandfather was John Herbert Carter known affectionately by all as Uncle Herbert. He had a warm genial personality, always had time to stop for a friendly greeting with everyone and give a lift to their day. He had a fine singing voice, delighted in the songs of Sir Harry Lauder and also sang church music. Children used to tease him to

Greenwood City

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

We are entering the blue-gold mellowness of early September again. It blesses the land at noon time but evenings whisper of autumn's crispness coming to us.

There is something about September that is different. Sumas hold their colors high, wild blue asters lift their faces to the sun, here and there we see the first glimpse of a flaming bouquet of red leaves.

Over the meadows and ponds in the mornings there is noticeable beauty. When the sun begins to pull the night's cover, there is an interlude of wonder. Shadowy shapes begin to take place, as minute by minute the mist thins. The whiteness lingers in low spots to remind me of the white blossoms of May being tossed on the gold-green floor of the meadows.

On a morning like this I decided to take a boat ride and fish a little. It had been some time since I had been out.

Not far from where my boat was tied I noticed some closed gentians. Few flowers adapt themselves better to the season than this one. It appears when the early waning days and frost-suggestive nights are so discouraging to most of the floral world. The deep tinted blue flowers are firmly closed as though to protect the delicate reproductive organs within from sharp touches of the lateness of the year. Its color seems lighter in the shade than in the bright sun light.

Just a boat's length out into the water were the fragile blossoms of the arrow-head plants. The graceful spires of three petaled, white flowers rise a foot or more above the bouquet of leaves which are arrow shaped, glossy green with prominent veins.

Just as a fish jumped a few yards up pond and Clyde, standing in the road, said jokingly, "There, catch that one!"

I replied, "I will!"

I did, on my first cast. What a surprise.

Now I rowed a bit up pond toward the field of pickerel weed. This is a well known plant in our ponds for the massive float of purple, turquoise and sapphire-blue blossoms, a very pretty sight.

Sitting on a branch over the water, its appearance somewhat grotesque, with a head too big for its body, crest of "uncombed hair" and small weak feet, perched a kingfisher. I'm sure it wasn't idling away its time. It was observing the water alertly, awaiting the least movement so to plunge head on for a fish. I have seen them many times come up with one. At my approach it gave its rattle and flew away. It doesn't tolerate intruders.

At the bend of the channel there were the magnificently pure blossoms of the "Chalice of Fragrance", the water lily. They floated majestically between their bright-green leaves. What a contrast with the dark and sluggish water out of whose slime they arise. This exquisite flower calls for little description.

Overhead roving clouds were drifting, as was I, while the water rippled on its way. The dragonflies flew here and there; at times coming to rest within the boat.

Ferns carpeted the shore and there seemed no end to summers hold but soon all this green will turn to gold.

There was the gentle touch of the morning breeze coming from the distant blue of the far off hills.

The water was lapping on the shore line swaying the cardinal flower with its vivid coloring. I sat for a moment just to see it so.

Yes, a cardinal flower, a turtle-head flower, and a gentian. Red, white, and blue; rising almost side by side.

For several minutes I followed with my eyes a small butterfly, possibly one of the cresscents as it drifted in and out up and down, under the grass blades. I'm sure it was winding its way under arch-

MUNDT-ALLEN POST AND UNIT TO MEET TUESDAY, SEPT. 11

The American Legion and Auxiliary, Mundt-Allen Post and Unit #81 of Bethel, will hold their regular meetings on Tuesday, Sept. 11, 1979, at the Legion Hall on Vernon Street at 8 p. m.

Special guests will be Dept. Vice Commander William Cloutier, Topsham; Historian, Roland Bowie, Lisbon Falls and President of the Second District, Carol Cloutier, also of Topsham. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

sing Hosannah (The Holy City).

Father was John H. C. Jr. After graduation from Gould he married Verna Kigore of Newry. They spent much of their life in Canada where he managed the woods operations for the Brown Co. In the early days it was quite a trip; by train to Quebec, next day by train to Samnau, and then on fifty miles to La Loutre by dog team. Hudson Bay coats were choice items. John used to wear one down on trips home and give it away to Bethel friends and family; the three town doctors had theirs first. After retirement he came home and served the community as a selectman and representative to the Legislature.

Aunt Molly is remembered in pew #6 purchased by her daughter. The other aunt was Alice M. S. Carter. She kept house for the family after her mother's death, then became a trained nurse, then graduated from the School of Institutional Management at Simmons College. She was for years the manager of the Women's City Club in Boston, went to take charge of the food at the Williamsburg Inn when the restoration project started and later went to the National Cathedral School for Girls in Washington, D. C. She was an early day career "emancipated" woman. Home on vacation in summer she joined the group expeditions through the brambles and briars for raspberries and blackberries. She was a tall woman with the family red hair and created quite a sensation wearing a pair of man's khaki knickerbockers.

Now I found a bit up pond toward the field of pickered weed. This is a well known plant in our ponds for the massive float of purple, turquoise and sapphire-blue blossoms, a very pretty sight. Sitting on a branch over the water, its appearance somewhat grotesque, with a head too big for its body, crest of "uncombed hair" and small weak feet, perched a kingfisher. I'm sure it wasn't idling away its time. It was observing the water alertly, awaiting the leave movement so to plunge head on for a fish. I have seen them many times come up with one. At my approach it gave its rattle and flew away. It doesn't tolerate intruders.

At the bend of the channel there were the magnificently pure blossoms of the "Chalice of Fragrance", the water lily. They floated majestically between their bright-green leaves. What a contrast with the dark and sluggish water out of whose slime they arise. This exquisite flower calls for little description.

Overhead roving clouds were drifting, as was I, while the water rippled on its way. The dragonflies flew here and there; at times coming to rest within the boat.

Ferns carpeted the shore and there seemed no end to summers hold but soon all this green will turn to gold.

There was the gentle touch of the morning breeze coming from the distant blue of the far off hills.

The water was lapping on the shore line swaying the cardinal flower with its vivid coloring. I sat for a moment just to see—yes, a cardinal flower, a turtle-head flower, and a gentian. Red, white, and blue; rising almost side by side.

For several minutes I followed with my eyes a small butterfly, possibly one of the crescents as it drifted in and out up and down, under the grass blades. I'm sure it was winding its way under arch.

Greenwood City

Mrs. Celia Morgan, Corres.

We are entering the blue-gold mellowness of early September again. It blesses the land at noon time but evenings whisper of autumn's crispness coming to us. There is something about September that is different. Sumas hold their colors high, wild blue asters lift their faces to the sun, here and there we see the first glimpse of a flaming bouquet of red leaves.

Over the meadows and ponds in the mornings there is noticeable beauty. When the sun begins to pull the night's cover, there is an interlude of wonder. Shadowy shapes begin to take place, as minute by minute the mist thins. The whiteness lingers in low spots to remind me of the white blossoms of May being tossed on the gold-green floor of the meadows.

On a morning like this I decided to take a boat ride and fish a little. It had been some time since I had been out.

Not far from where my boat was tied I noticed some closed gentians. Few flowers adapt themselves better to the season than this one. It appears when the early waning days and frost-suggestive nights are so discouraging to most of the floral world. The deep tinted blue flowers are firmly closed as though to protect the delicate reproductive organs within from sharp touches of the lateness of the year. Its color seems lighter in the shade than in the bright sun light.

Just a boat's length out into the water were the fragile blossoms of the arrow-head plants. The graceful spires of three petaled, white flowers rise a foot or more above the bouquet of leaves which are arrow shaped, glossy green with prominent veins.

Just as a fish jumped a few yards up pond and Clyde, standing in the road, said jokingly, "There, catch that one!"

I replied, "I will!"

I did, on my first cast. What a surprise.

Now I found a bit up pond toward the field of pickered weed.

This is a well known plant in our ponds for the massive float of purple, turquoise and sapphire-blue blossoms, a very pretty sight.

Sitting on a branch over the water, its appearance somewhat grotesque, with a head too big for its body, crest of "uncombed hair" and small weak feet, perched a kingfisher. 'Friday Flicks', a program of free movies at the Bethel Library, will continue through September. The films, supplied by the North Country Film Cooperative and the Maine State Library, are shown every Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

The schedule for September is: Sept. 7: Tramp (Chaplin) and Orphans; Sept. 14: Free To Be You and Me; Sept. 21: The Red Balloon and Sept. 28: Magic Rolling Board and Case of the Elevator Duck.

While the films have been selected to appeal to a variety of levels, it is asked that preschool children be accompanied by an adult.

The winter schedule of films will begin late in October. Anyone willing to help with the film series—in selecting films or as a projectionist—should contact the library. Another way to volunteer would be to provide non-film entertainment on Friday evenings during the month of October when films are not available from the State Library. SELLING GOODS & SERVICES TO PULP/PAPER INDUSTRY WILL BE SEMINAR TOPIC

Major areas of need for goods and services will be discussed for both businessmen and purchasing agents in the pulp and paper industry at a seminar scheduled for Sept. 28 at the University of Maine at Orono.

The seminar is being arranged because many small businessmen in Maine have expressed the desire to learn more about opportunities for selling goods and services to the Maine pulp and paper industry, according to Ray C. Noddin, specialist in the Technical Services Program at UMO, one of the sponsoring organizations.

Noddin added that purchasing agents in the pulp and paper industry have also expressed a desire to know more about the capabilities of local manufacturers and distributors.

For informational purposes only, the seminar is sponsored by the University of Maine Technical Services Program, the Project on Balanced Growth for Maine and the Associated Industries of Maine.

Serving on a panel to discuss the major areas of need for goods and services will be John Gotheau, purchasing agent for Brown Company; Philip Paul, manager, transportation, purchasing and stores, Great Northern Paper Company; Donald Brouty, purchasing manager, St. Regis Paper Company; G. W. MacFarland, purchasing manager, Georgia Pacific Paper Company, and Richard Morrison, supervisor, woodlands and equipment maintenance, Great Northern.

Registration is scheduled for 8:30 a. m. at the Hilltop Conference Center, UMO, and the group will be welcomed by Dr. Arthur M. Johnson, director, "Project on Balanced Growth for Maine," who will serve as seminar chairman.

Lunch will be served at 12:15 p. m. and an open discussion for all personnel is slated for 1:30 p. m. Further information may be obtained by contacting Ray Noddin at 22 Coburn Hall, UMO, tel. 581-7067.

From the Bethel Town Council

The Board of Selectmen met in regular session on Monday evening, Sept. 10, at the Grange Hall in West Bethel.

The Board reviewed correspondence concerning the proposed Dole Woods subdivision on Bailey Road and its potential effect on traffic safety from vehicles entering and exiting the Bailey Road. As the Town does not have the funds to reconstruct the Bailey Road and as the State does not have the funds to reconstruct Route #26 near the intersection of the Bailey Road, it was agreed that the best interim safety measure would be to request that the State lower the speed limit on Route #26 in that area. The Board voted to request that the speed limit be lowered from 50 m. p. h. to 40 m. p. h. from Telstar Regional High School to the intersection of Route #26 and Cross Street.

Gail Connors, owner of The Clear on Broad Street, met with the Selectmen to ask about installing a business directional sign near the intersection of Main Street, Mill Hill Road, Church Street, and Broad Street. The Selectmen asked that a specific proposal be developed for their consideration at a future meeting.

The Board approved the American Legion's application to operate a game of chance (sealed tickets), review statement, and a statement of the town.
